4. I've heard this one before so I decided to answer in the form of a poem.

"Which way would the other say?"
Is the question for that day

For if the liar you happen to ask
Will be given an impossible task

Lie. He will, with all his might
And say "go left" if the truth says right

But if you ask the one that's true
He will tell of the liar to you

And truthfully say that he would lie
And lead you down the path to die

So no matter which you ask the question
Follow the opposite of their suggestion!
